

Emily Landis Walker

Emily Landis Walker has worked in many prominent positions within financial services, government and humanitarian agencies globally and is acknowledged for her contributions to national and international initiatives. Her hallmarks include strong global relationships within both private and public sectors and an instinctive track record in devising and realising innovative strategies to deliver market performance, humanitarian efforts and public impact.

Emily is currently working on private sector development and investment in Iraq. She actively serves on Department of Homeland Security's Quadrennial Review Advisory Committee and Private Sector Advisory Committee.

