

Simon Bray

Simon Bray is a Commander in the Metropolitan Police where he has served in a variety of roles, including public order, specialist crime and as borough commander for Westminster. He has been a member of the national policing drugs committee since 2005 and is a member of the Government's Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs. Within the national police drugs portfolio, he is the lead on new psychoactive substances and also for drugs precursors, illicit drugs laboratories and controlled drugs liaison officers. His current role in the Met is as Commander, Security, working in Specialist Operations.

(Photo to follow)