

David Clark CPP, PCI PSP

David Clark CPP PCI PSP has been in the security industry for 21 years since leaving the army. He has held a number of senior security positions both within corporate organisations and in the private sector, he is currently Head of Security for the Francis Crick Institute, a brand new globally renowned unique scientific research centre in London which is due to open in early 2016. Previously, David has led on a number of Policing and Counter Terrorism initiatives in London's South Bank and in recent years has designed and implemented executive protection and physical security programs for major companies in the UK and overseas. He is Chair of ASIS UK Chapter 208, a member of the CSO Roundtable, AUCSO, Co-Chair of the Project Griffin Practitioners Board and Chair of the Security Commonwealth on behalf of ASIS UK.

